RULE SUMMARY

DMV has repealed the following four rules as they were no longer needed.

- OAR 735-001-0030 was adopted in 1985 and amended in 1988 to establish that if a reference to a statute or rule that had been renumbered was on any DMV document with the old reference, then it actually referred to the current statute number. After twenty plus years this rule is no longer needed as all rules, orders, forms, etc. have been updated to reflect the correct statute or rule number.
- OAR 735-016-0080 was adopted in 1999 establishing that DMV may request a social security number of a person requesting a driver license, identification card or vehicle transaction for purposes of establishing identity or residency or domicile in Oregon. However ORS 807.021 now requires proof of a person's social security number on all driver license, driver permit and identification card transactions for purposes of establishing identity, if one has been assigned by the Social Security Administration. DMV does not use a social security number in determining residency or domicile and is removing this requirement from the form used by applicants. Therefore OAR 735-016-0080 was no longer necessary.
- OAR 735-050-0090 was adopted to implement ORS 809.450. DMV proposes to repeal the rule because the requirements of ORS 809.450 are non-ambiguous and do not require an administrative rule for clarification.
- OAR 735-064-0085 was adopted in 2002 when ORS 807.270 was amended to change the length of time a probationary permit is valid. The rule was no longer necessary because the transition has been completed since all permits issued prior to the law change have expired.
